Church Dedication.

The M. E. Church at Read's wharf was dedicated last Sunday under very flattering circumstances. Three services were held during the day conducted by able ministers. Rev. J. D. Watson, the great evangelist, preached to a full house in the morning, and Rev. C. A. Grice delivered an able sermon in the afternoon and also preached at night, assisted by the presiding elder, Rev. A. D. Davis. The building was crowded at all the services, and the greatest interest was manifested. Among the visitors were Prof. J. H. Robinson of Baltimore, who presided at the organ and conducted the singing, &c., and Levin S. Melson of Bishopville, Md.—Bro. Melson took great interest in the church and contributed largely to it, and it was dedicated to him by a unanimous vote of the members of the church and Sunday school. We were very much gratified to see so much interest taken, and the whole amount asked for was contributed. The secretary's report of the Sabbath school was read showing 67 members, and a library of 108 volumes. The school was only organized five Sundays ago. We have great cause to feel encouraged, and in short expect to have one of the finest Sunday schools in the county. The building is beautifully finished inside and much admired by all that saw it, and is situated upon a beautiful plot of ground open to the creek, which was given by George H. Rea, as well as the lumber, &c.

Rev. J. D. Watson preached an able sermon in the Cradockville M. E. Church, South, in the afternoon.

All regretted that the pastor, Rev. J. F. Ayres of Accomac, could not be with us on account of being sick.

Obituary.

Peacefully and quietly fell asleep in Jesus on the night of August 25th 1888, at the home of her parents, Maggie Sarah, beloved daughter and eldest child of James G. and Tillie A. Nock, aged 13 years. Everything that could be done by her physicians, her parents, her grandfather and numerous friends was done for her restoration. For near eight weeks she was struggling with disease—bearing her sufferings with a patience and fortitude seldom equalled, never excelled.

As a school girl she was studious, perfect in deportment and a successful scholar. As her school mates gathered around her casket and dropped tears of sympathy and devotion, their young hearts were but paying a genuine tribute to true merit. Her aged maternal grandfather trembling beneath the weight of years, her father, mother, sisters and brother are almost heart-broken by the blow. They are resignedly trusting in God, and yet they feel that the light of the household is gone. She was not afraid to die. She was rational to the last. While dying she seemed to hear the music of the angels, and quietly passed from earth to the eternal city.

Her funeral was preached at the residence of her father in Wachapreague, by Rev. W. J. Twilley, from the text: "Weep not, she is not dead but sleeping;" after which her remains were conveyed to the family cemetery in Cusick Neck near Accomac C. H., for interment.

The short but beautiful life is closed, the sweet and pretty bud is plucked, not to wither, but to adorn the bosom of the Master. Though blinded by tears, as parents and friends raise their eyes heavenward they feel that through Christ's love they will go to her.

Her teacher.

LIZZIE S. WEERS

Notice to Teachers.

The examination of white teachers of the public schools of Accomac and Northampton counties will be held at the Cape Charles Institute on Friday the 14th day of September.

Examination of colored teachers of Accomac county will be held at Granger Hall on the Fair Grounds on Friday the 21st day of September. These examinations will be the only ones held this year for white and colored teachers of Accomac county, and a full attendance is desired.

Reduced rates of travel will be given to teachers returning home from the Institute by securing certificates of attendance from the instructors and presenting the same to the railroad agent Cape Charles when purchasing tickets.

MARRIED.

KILLMAN—GARDNER—At Hollies schoolhouse, August 29th, 1888, by Rev J. W. Hurdley, Henry W. Killman to Miss Mamie Gardner.

LANG-FINNEY—At Oceanock, August 29th, 1888, by Rev. John McNabb, James E. Lang to Miss Sallie W. Finney.

To Whom it may Concern.

Mr. Editor:—It would seem from the review of the card in your last issue signed John B. Melson, that he had actually slandered Capt. Crockett. Now I want it distinctly understood, that he does not acknowledge such a thing; he says he was very much irritated over the trifling manner of Capt. Crockett in the bargain and sale of that piece of land there, and possibly he said more than he ought to have said, as being members of the same church, but as to saying anything that any one could construe to mean slander he did not, and had it not been for the same personal revenge in some outsiders there would have been nothing more of it. And I will here say, I think I have had a chance to hear about as much as anyone else, and I will testify before the highest tribunal in the country, that I have never heard him slander Capt. Crockett in my life. It is only natural that Capt. Crockett should feel offended and even injured at hearing such reports, and be John R. Melson, wishes to say that if he did say anything in the heat of passion that he ought to have said, he would ask his pardon, or make any concession that is honorable and right.

L. J. MELSON.
